No one knows how the war had begun, but it had. There had just been a battle. Seara and the Sun Dragon army had not won, but neither had the Shadow Dragons. It had been a draw. Few had survived, only Seara and fifty other Sun Dragons. The Shadow Dragons only knew of twenty survivors.

Seara was the youngest, but strongest warrior, and already had a scar from the battle on her neck. They were in the Eirenal Mountains, high above the clouds where it was always sunny. The Sun Dragons and the Shadow Dragons had been fighting again about the dragon code.

In the dead of night the Shadow Dragons snuck through the water gate and blew up the main fortress with dynamite!

Seara was mad and also unsure about what to do. Her scales turned an angry blood red colour, instead of her normal white scales with gold. The red colour gives her inner strength.

The Sun Dragon Mountain

Two more Sun Dragons died from the attack. As soon as the explosion had happened, the Sun Dragons had closed the water gate and the Shadow Dragons did not know that the Sun Dragons had a magic shield protecting the fortresses, but it had been the fall Shadow Dragon army and the attack was in the night.

The Shadow Dragons had the upper hand. The Sun Dragons had no more materials to rebuild the fortress. The night had never gone slower. When the day came the sun dragons held a council at the ruin of the main fortress. They decided that half of the Sun Dragons would go to battle while half stayed behind to rebuild the fortress out of materials that had been left behind.

So the ones leaving for battle had to travel across the mountain range, which was quite the journey. The Shadow Dragon army was still trapped in the magic barrier, which gave the Sun Dragons an advantage, but it was also daytime, which gave them an even bigger advantage.

Seara was chosen for battle. After four days they finally arrived at the fortress of the Shadow Dragons. They attacked the guard forces. They won and broke down the fortress, but one did not win the battle. Seara made a noble decision to sacrifice herself so that her tribe could win.

Prophecy: One unknown, one unseen, the heroes kin will rise from the mountain, take up the fallen place in the battle.

The End.
